Why This Story

Women's soccer is changing around the world, but progress isn't measured only by new leagues or bigger crowds. It's measured by the people whose lives are transformed because those opportunities finally exist.

A League of Her Own captures that transformation through the eyes of the women who opened the doors, those walking through them today, and the girls who will inherit what's next.

One player, one coach, one family, and one generation at a time.

WHY THIS SERIES TRAVELS

Women's Sport

Women's sport is entering a period of unprecedented global growth. As new leagues, clubs, and opportunities emerge around the world, audiences are increasingly drawn to the personal stories behind the progress—not just the competition itself.

The World's Game

As the world's most-played sport, soccer provides an immediate point of connection across cultures, generations, and communities. With the 2026 men's FIFA World Cup and the women's tournament in 2027, global interest in the game continues to accelerate.

Universal Themes

While rooted in soccer, the series explores universal themes of resilience, identity, mentorship, opportunity, and belonging—creating emotional connections that extend far beyond sport.

A Story That Can Happen Anywhere

Every community has pioneers who opened doors, athletes chasing the next opportunity, and young players imagining what's possible. As women's sport continues to evolve around the world, A League of Her Own captures a story that is both deeply local and universally recognizable.
